

Joint FM initiative announced

06 May 2016

Servest Group and Atalian have announced the formation of a joint venture between the two companies, which will be known as Atalian Servest.

Designed to capitalise on the strength of each organisation, the 50/50 owned initiative is intended to allow expansion of each company's current offering.

New business is expected to be generated with existing and new customers and also across country boundaries.

Servest Group chief executive officer Rob Legge said "businesses are now looking for unified solutions that bring their communities together".

He said the joint exercise will offer a "pan European solution" to clients, from a supply partner that uses "the same cultural and business philosophies as adopted by Servest in the UK".

Atalian chief executive officer of international Matthieu de Baynast said: "Both organisations have very like-minded business approaches based on an entrepreneurial strategy where organic and acquisitive growth are of equal importance."

Both businesses will continue to operate in their respective regions, with the Atalian Servest operation utilised where both have an operational presence.

Currently, the two companies have a combined operational reach across 27 countries covering Europe, North America, South East Asia and Africa.
